was also chairman of the House and Garden Tour for the Junior League Garden Club. LeAnn was active in the tennis community, playing in USTA and Inco leagues for years. She enjoyed ballroom dancing (jitterbugging with partner Don Trainer) and later on, Zumba. She had a compelling personality, a brilliant smile, and a zest for life. She was also the self-appointed "mayor" of North Boulevard in Huntington, to the delight and enjoyment of her close neighbors the Griswolds, the Fergusons and the Wilsons, to name a few. LeAnn's favorite charities in Huntington included Branches Domestic Violence Shelter (she was a former board member), The Healing Place, and the Common Grounds ministry at Johnson Memorial United Methodist Church, where she was fondly known as the "Milk Lady."
